

Intangible-Tangible Cultural Heritage: A Sustainable Dichotomy?

7th Cambridge Heritage Seminar

Saturday, 13 May 2006

Seminar Room, McDonald Institute for Archaeological Research

The seventh Cambridge Heritage Seminar aims at exploring how the concept of cultural heritage has evolved in recent years. In particular, it aims to foster discussions about how we might better understand the complex qualities and relationships nested among the rapidly evolving concepts of tangible and intangible cultural heritage.

For information and to register for the conference please write to:
dv230@cam.ac.uk